PREFACE

For explanations concerning the plan of this bibliography the reader may be referred to the preface of one of its early predecessors. Beginning with the present volume, however, the scope of this annual bibliography has been changed in that the content has been limited to writings on the history of the United States and its outlying possessions, in contrast to previous volumes which have included material on the history of Canada and the Latin American countries. But it is to be noted that, although writings dealing specifically and entirely with the history of the countries to the south of the United States have been omitted, all items treating of the colonial history of those sections of the United States which were formerly part of the overseas empire of Spain (i. e. Florida, Louisiana, California, and the Southwest) have been included, as has also all material dealing with the history of diplomatic relations of the Latin American countries, and of Canada, with the United States.

The change in policy described above has been made in the interests of economy, both of time required for compilation, and of printing costs.

This volume has been prepared at the Library of Congress. For the facilities which have been granted there, thanks are gratefully rendered to Mr. Archibald MacLeish, Librarian of Congress, to Dr. Herbert Putnam, Librarian Emeritus, and to other members of the staff of the Library.

The preparation of the manuscript, as distinguished from the printing and publication, has been sustained by a group of subscribers consisting of various historical societies and individuals.

The monograph series; records of early American architecture, edited by R. F. Whitehead ... vol. XXIII, no. 1.

Historical and descriptive data regarding the colonial architecture of historic buildings in Boston.

- Buckham, John Wright. The contribution of the Pilgrims to American life. CONGREGATIONAL HIST. SOC. TRANS., XIII (1937) 4-10. [1165]
- Buffinton, Arthur H. The Massachusetts experiment of 1630. COL. SOC. MASS. PUB., XXXII (1937) 308-320. [1166]
- A re-examination of the Massachusetts experiment of three centuries ago in the light of the great social and political experiment of today. The writer shows that "the Massachusetts experiment belongs in the class of revolutionary movements, and only as such can it be understood", and concludes that "it is glory enough that they brought into being a type of democratic society which came to be recognized as the norm towards which, as De Tocqueville predicted, all modern societies have, until recently, tended to develop."
- Cadbury, Henry J. Quakers and their abettors, Middlesex county, Massachusetts, 1663. FRIENDS' HIST. ASSOC. BUL., XXVII (1938) 9-16. [1167]
- Prints the text of the minutes and miscellaneous papers of the Middlesex county court which pertain "to Quaker cases that belong to the sitting of October 6, 1663."
- Chamberlain, George Walter, contrib. Warnings-out in Malden, Mass., 1678-1794. NEW ENG. HIST. AND GENEAL. REG., XCII (1938) 46-60. [1168]
- Prints a list of persons warned by the selectman to leave the town of Malden, Massachusetts, during this period.
- Clark, E. S., jr. The first lighthouse in the United States. U. S. N. INST. PROC., LXIII (1937) 507-510. [1169]
- An historical account of the first lighthouse erected in the United States—that built at Boston in 1715.
- Clarke, Hermann F. John Hull—colonial merchant, 1624-1683. AM. ANTIQ. SOC. PROC., n. s. XLVI (1937) 197-218. [1170]
- Clarke, Hermann F. John Hull: mintmaster. NEW ENG. QUAR., X (1937) 668-684. [1171]
- John Hull was appointed mintmaster by the General court of the colony of Massachusetts in 1652.
- Coombs, Zelotes W. Early blast furnace operations in Worcester county. WORCESTER HIST. SOC. PUB., II (1938) 138-152. [1171a]
- Fitch, Jabez, jr. The diary of Jabez Fitch, jr. Transcribed by the editor [George Ernest Bowman]. MAYFL. DESC., XXXIV (1937) 63-66, 119-122. [1172]
- Cont. from v. XXXIII, 1935.
These installments cover the period from March to November, 1770.
- Fitz, Reginald. A rum cocktail. MED. LIB. ASSOC. BUL., XXVII (1938) 28-31. [1172a]
- An account of events leading up to the passage by the Massachusetts legislature of "An act for preventing abuses in distilling of rum ... with leaden heads or pipes", Sept. 3, 1723.
- Gee, Clarence Stafford. The Bradford manuscript. CHURCH HIST., VI (1937) 136-144. [1173]
- The Bradford manuscript was the record kept by Governor William Bradford of the story of the founders of Plymouth from 1606 to 1646. The purpose of this article is to trace the steps in the discovery of this manuscript, which had been lost for many years, and "to follow the events which led finally to the return of the valuable holograph to the United States."

Haraszti, Zoltán. The letters of Governor Belcher. MORE BOOKS, XIII (1938) 139-151. [1174]

An account of a small group of letters by Jonathan Belcher, governor of Massachusetts from 1730 to 1741, which although they add little to the history of the period, "supply a few touches ... to the personality of the governor."

Harris, Nathaniel. Records of the court of Nathaniel Harris, one of His Majesty's justices of the peace within and for the county of Middlesex, holden at Watertown from 1734 to 1761 ... Together with a paper by F. E. Crawford read before the Historical society of Watertown, November 14, 1893. Watertown, Mass.: Historical society of Watertown, 1938. 135 p. front. [1174a]

Gottschalk, Louis. Lafayette joins the American army. Chicago, Ill.: Univ. of Chicago press [1937]. xv, 364 p. maps. [1579]

This volume narrates the history of the Marquis de Lafayette during the twenty months of his first stay in America. The author is concerned particularly with the development of Lafayette's liberalism, and here presents a new thesis, namely that at this time Lafayette was "not even much of a liberal. The significance of that pilgrimage was nevertheless that it laid the foundation for the building of his future faith—liberalism."

Issued also as thesis (PH. D.)—University of Pennsylvania.

The title "reciprocity policy" is here used to cover a fairly definite range of governmental activities in aid of foreign trade, that is, "regulations directly applied to foreign commerce for commercial purposes, and to efforts to relieve trade from the adverse regulations of foreign governments."

The writer points out that the modern interpretation of the term "reciprocity" as applied to commerce was uncommon during the period from 1774 to 1829.
